The announcement of the setting up of an outsourced semiconductor assembly and test (OSAT) unit at Jagiroad near Guwahati in Assam has piqued the interest of several domestic and international investors, especially in the electronics manufacturing sector, Assam Chief Minister (CM) Himanta Biswa Sarma said. The Assam CM was in Delhi to talk to investors and companies about the state's ₹25,000 crore electronics component manufacturing scheme (ECMS). The scheme envisages offering a top-up incentive of up to 60 per cent to companies that are approved under the central government's ECMS. In an interview with Aashish Aryan, Sarma said that, akin to the world looking at a China+1 strategy, electronics component manufacturers were looking at Assam as an alternative location to set up more manufacturing units in the country. Edited excerpts:

In the electronics manufacturing segment, you compete with the likes of Gujarat, Karnataka, and Tamil Nadu, which have well-established electronics manufacturing ecosystems. What are Assam's plans to get into that coveted list?

 You have rightly said that there are disparities and imbalances. Many Indian states have already progressed much faster than others. In the past 10 years. a lot of ground has been covered in terms of infrastructure.

There are industries that want to go to different regions of India. Their primary industry or plant may be in Karnataka, but they want another unit somewhere in West Bengal, Assam, or Odisha. We are seeing a positive response.

Last week, we signed a memorandum of understanding (MoU) with 11 hotel chains, including Marriott, Taj, and the Radisson Group, for setting up big hotels in Guwahati.

In a practical world, people realise that there are advantages to spreading out and not being concentrated in one state.

what is practical and not living in a utopian world.

Assam has come out with its ECMS. What are the salient features? ■ The scheme is for ₹25,000 crore, of which we have already disbursed and allocated nearly ₹8,000 crore. We are not putting any timeline on when this fund will be consumed, because if we get good applications in the next month, we will give these incentives. So, for every ₹100 that the Centre gives under its ECMS, Assam will give ₹60. Other than that, we have incentives in the form of tax breaks, state GST breaks, and concessions on electricity and water charges, among others.

Tata is setting up the OSAT at Jagiroad. Around that unit, a lot of ancillary industries are coming up, with someone working on the gas to be supplied, while others are helping with packaging. A lot of these small units are coming up in the Ratan Tata Electronic City, and all these units will be common to other electronics component makers that come to that area. We are trying to explain to the industry the benefits of co-locating near the Tata unit.

What is the total number of jobs that you foresee happening in the electronics sector in Assam over the next few years?

 Compared to many other manufacturing industries. electronics and semiconductor units create more jobs. There is a need for precision work, but there is a good job opportunity. If we harness this properly, there can be a lot of employment, and Assam is hopeful of that.

Trump's true legacy: Driving scientific brilliance out of America

Donald Trump's presidency wasn't just a chaotic political sideshow—it was a slow-moving catastrophe for American science. While his antics entertained cable news viewers and outraged social media, a quieter tragedy was unfolding: the systematic alienation of the global scientific community.

Trump is, perhaps, a unique specimen in presidential history. Rarely has a U.S. president so blatantly blended politics with personal profit. From foreign dignitaries booking rooms at his hotels to his relentless promotion of Trump-branded businesses while in office, his time in the White House blurred the lines between public service and private gain.

But beyond the scandals and sound bites lies a less flashy, far more devastating story: Trump's war

While past administrations—Democratic and Republican alike—invested in research and innovation to keep America globally competitive, Trump did the opposite. He decimated science budgets, undermined federal research institutions, and gutted programs that had long been the backbone of U.S. technological

In a display of self-sabotage that would make any autocrat proud, the Trump administration slashed funding for the National Institutes of Health (NIH) and the National Science Foundation (NSF). His proposed 2021 budget recommended a 40% cut to the NIH and a jaw-dropping 55% cut to the NSF. NASA, the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA), and the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration (NOAA) weren't spared either.

These cuts had real consequences. Thousands of scientists lost jobs or saw their research dry up overnight. Universities froze hiring, halted grants, and in some cases, shut down entire research programs. Even international collaboration suffered as Trump's draconian visa restrictions and xenophobic immigration policies discouraged foreign scientists from coming—or staying—in the United States.

In a particularly chilling move, the Trump administration even revoked Harvard University's ability to admit international students—a policy so controversial that it was swiftly challenged in court. But as America fumbled, the rest of the world seized the opportunity.

Canada launched its Canada Leads initiative to recruit displaced U.S. biomedical researchers. France's Safe Place for Science program rolled out in Aix-en-Provence, offering refuge to scientists who felt threatened under Trump's anti-science regime. Australia introduced the Global Talent Attraction Program, dangling competitive salaries and relocation packages to lure away American minds.

This is no small matter. After World War II, the U.S. invested heavily in science and became the birthplace of the internet, life-saving vaccines, treatments for cancer and cardiovascular disease, and even the smartphone. Now, that entire system teeters on the edge of collapse-not from natural decay, but from deliberate sabotage.

Let's not pretend this was about fiscal responsibility. Trump's bloated military spending and lavish tax cuts for billionaires reveal where his priorities truly lay. The dismantling of federal science was ideological, not economic. He waged war on climate scientists, mocked epidemiologists during a global pandemic, and replaced data-driven policymaking with conspiracy theories and gut feelings.

Recruiters and research institutions abroad are now watching with interest—and opportunism. They know what the Trump administration refused to acknowledge: scientific talent is mobile. And when driven away, it rarely returns.

To be fair, it's too early to predict a full-blown brain drain. Relocation takes time, and practical barriers such as language, family needs, and pension systems remain. But make no mistake—the damage is done. Scientists may stay, but they are shaken. Young researchers may think twice before staking their careers in a country that treats expertise with contempt.

Trump may have failed to build his infamous wall, but in the world of science, he successfully constructed a blockade—one that pushed away the very minds who once made America the global

The question now is whether the nation can undo damage or whether it will continue hemorrhaging talent to countries that still value facts over slogans and truth over tweets.

Chennai Cruise terminal set for major upgrade

The Chennai Port has initiated a significant expansion and modernization of its cruise terminal, aiming to enhance passenger experience and accommodate the growing demand for cruise tourism. The upgraded facility is expected to be operational by September 2025.

Increased Capacity: The terminal's capacity will rise from 1,000 to 1,800 smoother boarding and disembarkation processes.

Infrastructure Enhancements: Upgrades include the installation of new elevators on both eastern and western sides, escalators, and an improved baggage handling system. Separate screening and frisking zones for international arrivals are also being introduced.

Facility Renovations:

Chennai, May 27: passengers, facilitating Renovations are underway for washrooms, the mezzanine level, and both northern and southern sections of the terminal to improve overall passenger

> Initially, only the northern side of the terminal was operational, leading to congestion. The current expansion addresses this issue by enhancing space and facilities. Authorities anticipate that these upgrades will reduce passenger waiting times, improve comfort, and attract more cruise ships to Chennai. The immigration department is also enhancing facilities to ensure seamless pas-
